

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A customer quotation system and method thereof are disclosed. In some embodiments, the system creates quoting data tables for products in accordance with original data tables for production. The system then integrates the quoting data tables to create customer requirement tables compatible with customer quotation systems. The system automatically provides product prices, which are derived from the sum of quotes for process technologies when customers create purchase orders.